USPS HONORS NEBRASKA'S SESQUICENTENNIAL: STAMP SHOWS SANDHILL CRANES ON THE PLATTE

by David M. Frye

The United States Postal Service honored millennia of Nebraska's prehistory by selecting an iconic photograph of sandhill cranes searching for their evening shelter along the Platte River. A ceremony, held Wednesday, March 1, in the Rotunda of the Nebraska Capitol Building featured the stamp's unveiling and remarks by Michael Forsberg, photographer.

He briefly described the effort and patience needed to make the photograph and then noted how the photograph captures the crossing of the cranes' south-to-north migration and the river's west-to-east flow. The river also marks the path taken by people of all cultures who have traversed the prairie, traveling eastward and westward across Nebraska.

LINPEX 2017: Nebraska Sesquicentennial

For two days—February 25 and 26, 2017—the stamp-collecting public and Club members mingled over dealers' wares, tubs of loose stamps from the United States and around the world, covers new and old, and treasures of unknown value retrieved from attics at LINPEX, the annual show featuring an array of resources that proved attractive to collectors of diverse interests.

The U.S. Postal Service provided the pictorial show cancel highlighting Nebraska's 150th anniversary of statehood and offered selections from its current stamp releases. The University of Nebraska Press brought a wide selection of its titles with Nebraska themes.

1. Dale Niebuhr and Joel Johnson staffed the Hospitality Table.
2. The Beginners' Table attracted a steady crowd of treasure hunters.
3. Bob Ferguson, Dave Wallman, and John Schultz offered help assessing the worth of two individuals' collections.
4. Four visitors and two members—John Radway and Keith Riese—viewed members' noncompetitive exhibits.
5. Vickie Clark, the USPS representative, applied the show cancel to one of the Club's cacheted covers.

CLUB PREPS COVERS FOR COLLECTORS

by David M. Frye

A generous donation presented the Lincoln Stamp Club with a unique opportunity. The Club received hundreds of Nebraska centennial first-day covers like the one illustrated here and more limited numbers of other first-day covers with the same centennial postage stamp.

The Club's leaders decided to offer a free combo cover to each member. These covers will be available at upcoming Club meetings. If you are able to come to the meetings, you can pick up your cover there. If you are unable to come to the meeting, then send a note to the Club at its mailing address on the front page or send an e-mail to info@lincolnstampclub.org to obtain your cover.

Dave Wallman, the Club's treasurer and a member of the American First Day Cover Society (AFDCS), has worked with the U.S. Postal Service to prepare the various covers.

The Club will offer first-day covers in various configurations and with different cachets on eBay.com and its Web site. Watch for Club updates on this new collecting venture.
